POLYISO PRICE INCREASE ANNOUNCEMENT

February 28, 2011

To Customers of Hunter Panels,

Inflationary pressures on the chemical feed stocks used to produce polyisocyanurate insulation have resulted in increased prices across the board for our raw materials. These increases, coupled with the persistent rise in fuel, energy and transportation costs, have forced us to announce additional price increases to the market. The severity of the increases to our costs has resulted in no margin for advanced warning. We were not provided with this outlook until very recently and we are feeling its effects immediately.

Please be advised of the following:

- The previously announced 5% increase on all Hunter polyiso products remains in effect for shipments after March 1, 2011.
- An additional 6% increase will be effective with shipments after April 15, 2011.
- Existing job quotes, documented before this announcement, will be honored through the quote expiration dates.
- Please make every effort to place orders early. A sold-out condition will not constitute price protection.

The ongoing volatility of the markets for key raw materials due to the unrest in the Middle East has created a climate of uncertainty for the pricing outlook. Please contact us for firm pricing quotes for all your upcoming bids and projects.

As always, we will work hard to service your needs during the upcoming season. Your business is greatly appreciated. Please contact us with concerns or questions.

With best regards,

Alma Garnett
